latest offerings from the man who says he's led the way in contemporary carpets for 20 years and more – Christopher Farr. Ring 020 7349 0888, or visit christopherfarr.com.

6 In recent collaborations with designers, Jacques Barret, founder of Triode Edition, has put the spotlight on lamps and pendants. Shown from left are 'Grose', a porcelain tube that crosses Simon Njami's has 'tied up' with leather-clad cable (£1,032 approx), and 'Fuchsia', Pierre Gonalons's blown-glass interpretation of the flower (£2,493 approx). Ring 00 33 1 43 29 40 05, or visit triode-design.com.

7 Angel Hughes, proprietor of the delightful antiques and hand-made crafts and textiles emporium Tobias and the Angel, does a heavenly line in boxes (from £28) and ring-binders (£24) – they're covered in papers that are hand-block-printed in her own studio. Ring 020 8678 8902, or visit tobiasandtheangel.com.

8 If Étienne Sottsass and Kazimir Malevich had the opportunity to collaborate on a ceramics collection the results might have looked a little like this limited-edition 'Secur' range of glazed and unglazed vessels, or 'experiments with the circle, square and rectangle' (from £52 for a cup). They're by Baptiste Ymaet and Vincent Jussaux of Atelier Polyhedre, who count the former pair among their design heroes. Ring 00 33 6 82 24 79 90, or visit polyhedre.com.

9 In life ancient Egyptians used linen as currency and in death as mummy wrappings. Cyrille Fritton, whose love of 'cozy homes' and concerns about ecology and natural products motivated her to found Linge Particulier, would probably prefer you use her stone-washed linen textiles to dress your beds and tables. Shown are 'Basic' cushion covers, available in 20 colours; £10 approx each. Ring 00 33 6 20 83 53 04.

10 Cupboard love: like the antiques that inspired them, Grange's oak cabinets 'Corner' (left; £2,565) and 'Telegraph' (£1,790) will surely have a place in your heart forever. Ring 020 7955 7060, or visit grange-london.com ■
